

EUROPEAN FAIR PRICING NETWORK

The European Fair Pricing Network (EFPN) aims to achieve fair prices for cancer medicines and, more broadly, works towards a pharmaceutical market which produces accessible and truly innovative medicines for patients.

OBJECTIVES

To determine what constitutes a fair price, it is necessary to increase transparency in the pharmaceutical system. The Network aims to provide reliable European data through research and bring sustainable change through advocacy.

Transparency is needed throughout the entire system. Starting from research and development all the way to manufacturing, marketing, trade and financing. A transparent system, understandable for both patients and payers, shall ensure timely access to high-quality cost-effective treatments which significantly improve patient outcomes.

RESEARCH

The EFPN research unit will focus on three research questions in the first two years:

- I. Availability - Which medicines are available for specific populations/population subgroups?
- II. Transparency - At which (net) price are the medicines available?
- III. Accountability - How high is the current amount of public investment in pharmaceutical R&D?

ADVOCACY

The advocacy unit will translate the research findings into policy recommendations in order to shape political decisions on the European and national level. Focusing on:

- I. Transparency - Achieve greater bargaining power for governments in the pricing negotiations with the industry.
- II. Accountability - Ensure medicines resulting from publicly funded research are available at an affordable price.

PARTNER ENGAGEMENT

Does your organisation value transparency in the pharmaceutical system? Do you believe that increasing transparency will help patients access safe and effective products?

Take the opportunity to become a partner in this international network. As an EFPN partner you can contribute in resources, time or both. We believe that cancer societies have a particular role to play. They are highly respected organisations, act as one of the main funders of cancer research, and focus on the well-being of patients.

But cancer societies cannot do this on their own. We call on organisations from different fields to join our cause, including researchers, patients, healthcare professionals, philanthropists, and investigative journalists.
